Rillis are made from scraps of cotton fabric hand dyed to the desired color. A typical rilli is about seven by four or five feet. Much of the fabric comes from old, worn shalwar kameez (traditional loose shirt and pant outfits). The most common colors in rillis are white, black, red, yellow, orange, green, dark blue and purple.

The art of creating traditional ralli quilts - Daily Times

I design handmade textiles and have them made by master craftspeople in rural villages of India. My handwoven cotton quilts are reversible, hand-stitched, and machine washable. They are also eco friendly. Like other Western designers working in India, I am helping to keep alive ancient crafts, threatened by factory made products.
