Running is Good Therapy. Few things relieve tension and stress like going for a good run. Sweating, pounding the pavement work to ease the mind and relax me. Maybe it ' s just that I am so focused on not dying that I have little concern for anything else. I started running more than ten years ago during a particularly stressful period in my life.

So it was a surprise to me when Running For My Life began with Dunn en route to the notorious Angola (prison) to meet his mother's killer. It certainly pulled me into Dunn's story - and made me want to read more. And it was an interesting and quick read - taking the reader from the night of the murder through Dunn's career at FSU and the NFL.

Running always hurt to start with, but the pain became more bearable. Gradually, I went from walking, then running 15 miles in a month, to running 35 to 50 and eventually 120 miles in a month, and even 20 miles in a day. This was unbelievable for me. Like marathon training, every business needs a good business plan – that ' s obvious.

Then an article caught my eye: " How Running Every Day for 250 Days (and Counting) Has Changed My Life. " Inspired, I decided to try a run streak: at least one mile a day for 40 days. The short distance and time-limited nature of a streak appealed to me: A mile was roughly 10 minutes, so I could never claim I didn ' t have time.
