Quick Color Tips for Pet Brands: Lightest wins. Your eye is automatically drawn to the lightest thing on the page. Use bright / light pop-colors on a darker background for your call-to-action. No Primary palettes. Primary colors (bright red, grass green, royal blue and bright yellow) used together can look childish or cheap – avoid!

Fever coat is an effect known in domestic cats, where a pregnant female cat has a fever or is stressed, causing her unborn kittens' fur to develop a silver-type color (silver-grey, cream, or reddish) rather than what the kitten's genetics would normally cause. After birth, over some weeks the silver fur is replaced naturally by fur colored according to the kitten's genetics.

Many of the dogs and cats are created with a few simple lines and splodges of colour that I think any artist, even one as poor as me, could emulate. Also important is the fact that these are not anatomically perfect illustrations, but interpretations of what the cats and dogs look like made with techniques budding artists can create for themselves.

But can color affect your dog? The first step in answering that question is to know what colors dogs see. Dogs do see colors, but the colors they see aren ' t as vivid or as many as we see. Most experts agree that while they can ' t see reds and greens, dogs do see most other colors — including blacks, whites, grays, yellows and blues.
